

Australian Library and Information Association

ALIA Fellowship

<http://www.alia.org.au/awards/>

The Award

The Board of Directors may confer the distinction of Fellow on a member who, in the opinion of the Board, has reached an exceptionally high standard of proficiency in library and information science, and has made a distinguished contribution to the theory or practice of library and information science, and also directly contributed to the aims and objects of the Australian Library and Information Association.

Documentation should provide as much evidence as possible of the nominee's eligibility. Such evidence might include, but not be limited to:

- an outstanding contribution to the objects and work of the Australian Library and Information Association
- a record of sustained high achievement and leadership in the field of library and information science
- academic and professional qualifications
- authorship of publications or bibliography on library and information science, and
- conduct of research or development in any field of library and information science.

Who can be nominated?

Nominees must have at least eight years' standing as an Associate or Library Technician member and be a current financial member. This award is peer-nominated.

Are nominations confidential?

Confidentiality in nomination is essential and nominees should not be aware that they are being nominated for the award. Premature disclosure of details may prejudice consideration of the nomination.

Who assesses nominations?

Nominations are considered by the Board of Directors.

Is it necessary to provide referees?

Yes, the names, addresses and contact details of individuals who would be able to comment directly on the nominee's service to the library and information sector should be included with the nomination. We require 2 referees for the nominee.
